New Coronavirus

Vaccination begins

Vaccination and herd immunity

Vaccination

When you get an infectious disease, you can immunize(resistance)against the virus that cause it. Immunity makes it harder for you to get the same infection again, and even if you get it, your symptoms become less severe.

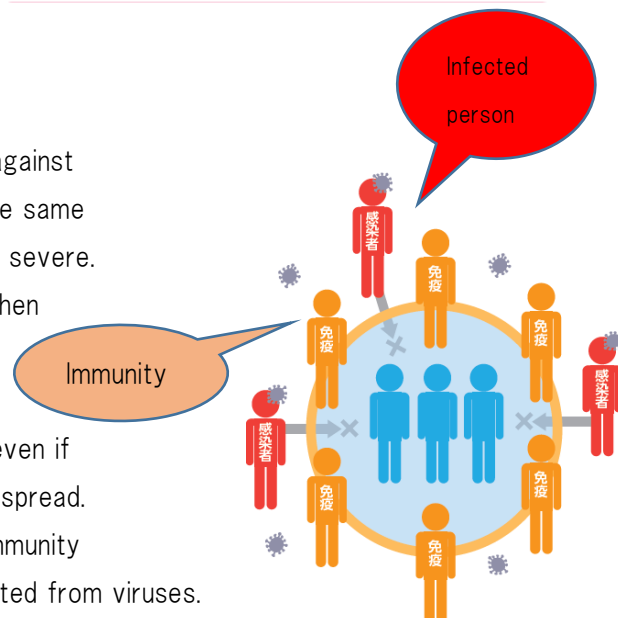

Vaccination is performed to immunize against diseases and strengthen immunity using this body mechanism

Herd immunity

When more than a certain percentage of population has immunity, even if an infected person appears, it will not easily infect other people or spread. People with immunity become a wall and people who do not have immunity are also protected from infection, and society as a whole is protected from viruses.

This condition is called herd immunity

The proportion of people who have the immunity needed to obtain herd immunity depend on the type of infection. Many experts have suggested that more than 70 % of the population needs to be immune to the new corona virus.

New corona vaccine

Effect

Development of a new corona vaccine is under way and the effectiveness and safety of the product have been confirmed.

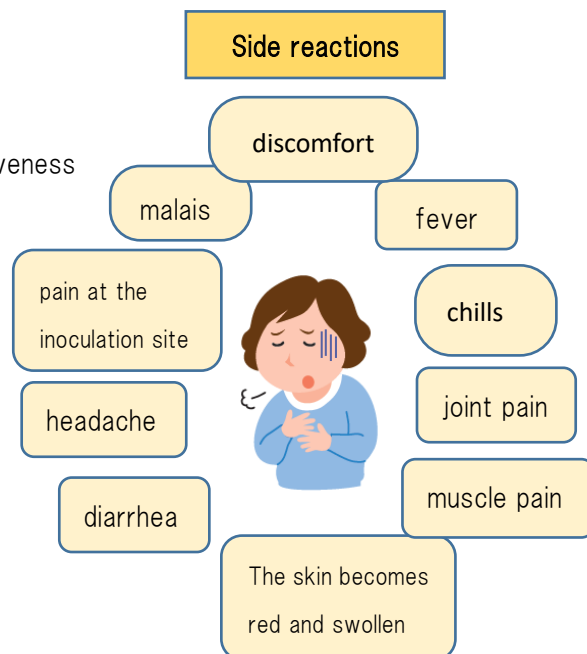

Vaccine development companies have announced that fewer people who have been vaccinated have developed a new coronavirus infection than those who have not.

Effect on mutant strains

In general, viruses are constantly mutating and a small mutation do not make the vaccine ineffective. It has also been announced that antibodies that are effective against mutant strains have been produced.

Side reaction

The most likely side reaction is the injection site pain. As seen in most people, less than 1% of the pain is so painful that interferes daily life. The main symptoms of suspected side reaction are the upper right

If you have any doubts or concerns about vaccination, please contact the Ministry of Health, Labor and Welfare's new corona vaccine consultation desk

(Kōsei Rōdō syō) ☎ 0120-76-1770

9:00~21:00 (Also held on Sat,Sun,holidays)

Let's prevent the spread and aggravation of infection by vaccination

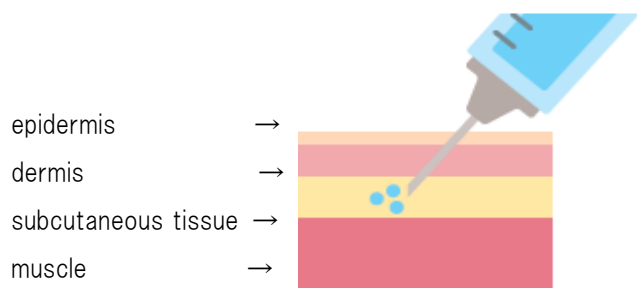

Inquiry Health Promotion Division (Kenkō Zōshin ka) TEL 22-2727 FAX 28-0267

How to inoculate

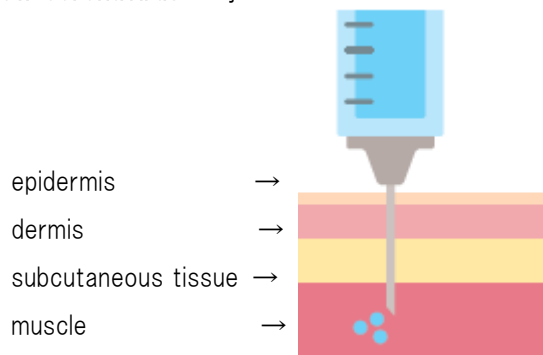

Familiar vaccination such as influenza is done by subcutaneous injection, where the ingredients are slowly absorbed and the effect is long lasting.

The new coronavirus vaccine is given by intramuscular injection, which is said to have few side reactions and likely to produce antibodies.

Influenza Injection into the subcutaneous tissue of skin

New coronavirus injection into shoulder muscle

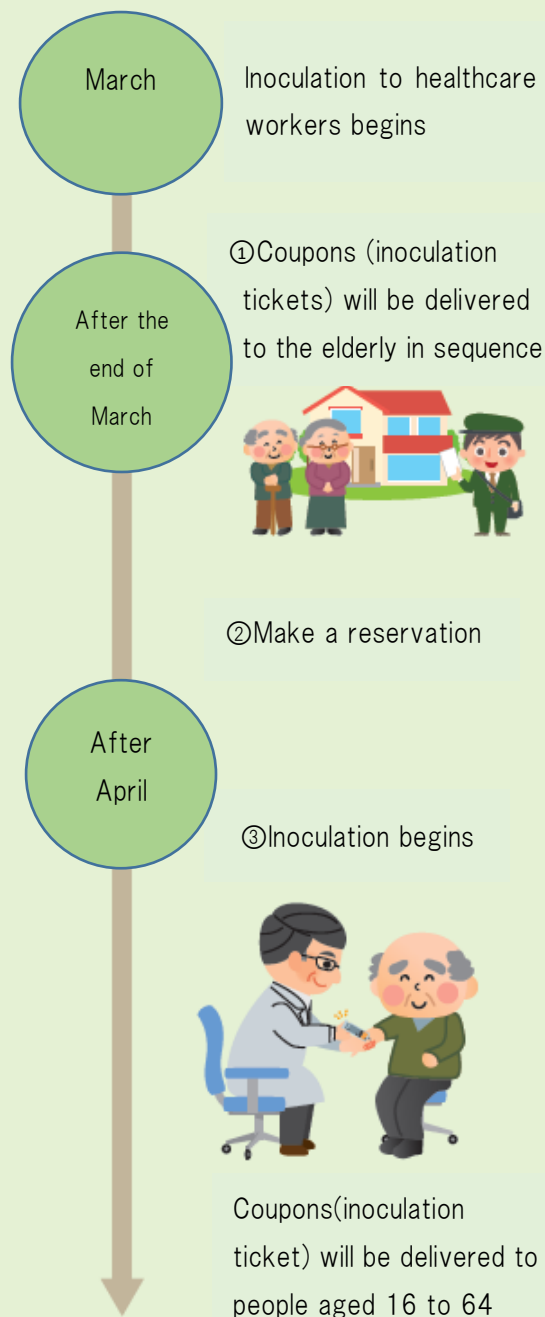

The new coronavirus vaccine needs to be given twice(for free) at intervals of 3~4 weeks

The following people cannot be vaccinated

People with fever of 37.5 degrees or higher
People who have had anaphylactic shock

Inoculation flow

※Subject to change depending on the status of vaccine distribution from the country
