■ Be careful of heat stroke

Inquiry Health Promotion Division (Kenko Zoshin Ka) ☎0544-22-2727

When the temperature suddenly rises and your body is not accustomed to the heat, it is not able to regulate the body temperature properly and is likely to get heat stroke. It is important to prevent heat stroke even before the start of summer.

Points to prevent heat stroke

Drink Water Often

Even if you are not sweating or thirsty, drink water or tea at least once an hour (the standard is 1.2 liters a day). If you sweat a lot, take a pinch of salt (0.3-0.5g) for every 200 ml of water.

Wear cool clothing

Wear clothes that are breathable and easy to dry. When going out, use a hat or sun umbrella to avoid direct sunlight.

Review your lifestyle to make your body more resistant to the heat

If your physical strength decreases due to lack of sleep or loss of appetite, you are more likely to get heat stroke. Make sure to eat a well-balanced diet and exercise moderately.

Make good use of air conditioning

It is possible to get heat stroke even indoors.

Use an air conditioner or fan to keep the temperature and humidity in the room from rising too high.

The guideline is to keep the temperature below 28°C and the humidity below 70%.

欠席する (Kesseki suru/Be absent) → 休みます (Yasumi masu/Not attend)

着席する (Chakuseki suru/Be seated) → 座ります (Suwari masu/Sit down)

土足禁止 (Dosoku Genkin/No footwear allowed)

→ 靴をぬいでください (Kutsu wo nuide kudasai/Please take off your shoes.)
