Information on Seniors, Health, Medical Care, Nursing Care, and Disabilities

Be careful of heat stroke.

Hot summer season is coming soon. People lose appetite and strength in hot weather and are more likely to get heat stroke.

Due to self-quarantine during COVID-19 pandemic, people are going out less, losing strength and becoming more sensitive to the vulnerable to heat.

Let's prevent heat stroke while taking measures against infections disease.

Key Points to Prevent Heat Stroke

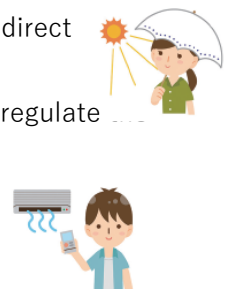

① Drink water frequently.

- When wearing a face mask, it is hard to feel thirsty and more likely to run out of water.
- Even if you are not sweating or thirsty, drink 1.2 liters of water per day.
- If you sweat a lot, it is also necessary to replenish salt.

② Avoid the heat with clothing and air conditioners.

- Wear clothing made of airy and easy-to-dry materials. When going outside, avoid direct sunlight by wearing a hat or using a parasol.
- Even indoors, it is possible to get heat stroke, so use air conditioners and fans to regulate temperature and ventilate frequently.
- The recommended room temperature is below 28°C and humidity is below 70%.

③ Build your body to withstand the heat.

- Eat well-balanced meals 3 times a day, exercise moderately, and get enough sleep.
- If you are outdoors and can keep a sufficient distance (2m or more) from people, remove your face mask.

④ Manage your health every day.

- Check your health, such as taking your temperature every morning. If you feel unwell, please take a rest and take care of yourself first.
